WHY PATULIN TESTING MATTERS

Patulin is a mycotoxin produced by molds and is often found in rotting apples and apple products. It has also been found in pears, cherries, blueberries, plums, bananas, strawberries, and grapes. Exposure to Patulin can have health risks, and regulatory agencies have established limits to protect consumers. Our Patulin testing services help you meet these limits and ensure your products are safe for consumption.

YOUR SUCCESS IS OUR PRIORITY

At Westgate Labs, we are committed to delivering Patulin testing services that instill trust and confidence in your food products. Safeguard your brand, protect your customers, and comply with industry regulations.
